Humidity, heat, lack of rainfall pushes county toward drought

BY BOB DEMAREE

Despite recent rainfall, Jefferson County Emergency Management Agency Director Troy Morgan warned Jefferson County Commissioners that the county could be approaching drought conditions.

Several days of no or minimal rainfall combined with high heat and humidity is increasing the threat of drought conditions Morgan said at Thursday's Commissioners meeting.

He said the U.S. drought monitor is "slowly creeping west to east across the state" and Jefferson County will get dryer until significant rainfall occurs. He said the county is not yet at the point where a burn ban must be issued but extra awareness and precautions are needed in some areas.

bring damage. "We've had some excessive rains that have been isolated," he said, noting that there has been some damage but nothing widespread.

Morgan also said Jefferson County EMA received assistance during the Madison Regatta from Jennings County EMA, Clark County EMA and the National Weather Service that have helped in the past. However, he said this year there was also assistance from Federal Aviation Administration and the Federal Air Marshal Service.

Morgan noted that due to the number of drones in use over the crowd during the Regatta last year, a decision was made to protect the air space by issuing a temporary flight restriction covering a one-half mile radius of the event area during race weekend.

Arts board wants consultant to lend help with ordinance

City to seek artist for gateway sculpture

BY BOB DEMAREE

The newly created Madison Public Arts Commission, gathered for its second official meeting Thursday, agreed to seek hiring a consultant to assist and expedite with developing a public arts ordinance.

"This is an important task for our community," said Kim Nyberg, the board chairman. "We want to make sure we are doing the best we can to really create an environment for the arts to thrive. We want to do this right and involve our whole community, and make it something we're all proud of."

To that extent, Nyberg recommended that the Commission work with a consultant to bring everyone's ideas together to then create guidelines for the ordinance. "It would be an outside person to compile our thoughts and the community's thoughts for unique guidelines for Madison," which she said would be under the commission's guidance and working with the creative community and local artists.

Nyberg noted Madison's public art ordinance should not be simply a take on what's been done in other communities because Madison is unique.

"This is a unique piece that needs to be Madison," she said. "It really needs to be about us and what we care about."

Nyberg said the project to create the ordinance "doesn't have to be a huge drawn-out process. We already know where we're going with this." She said it could just be a matter of pulling all the information together, and that's what the consultant will help the group to achieve.

JCPC to pursue legal action more quickly in nuisance cases

BY BOB DEMAREE

Frustrated by nuisance properties that are not getting cleaned up, Jefferson County Plan Commission (JCPC) is ready to take legal action against more property owners.

The Plan Commission on Tuesday voted unanimously to take court action against Terry Hall, 7569 West Jones Road, Lexington, in Saluda Township, to clean up a property.

Josh Cline, the county's building and zoning inspector, said Hall was given 90 days to clean his property and now that time has expired and "it's not cleaned up at all."

Plan Commission President Warren Auxier noted that even after a court action is filed, the board has the option of withdrawing a lawsuit if Hall quickly and adequately makes improvements. "At least this starts it running" and moves the effort forward should Hall continue to resist taking action, Auxier said.

Auxier and other board members agreed to more aggressively and promptly deal with nuisance issues than they have in the past. "I think we're starting to learn that telling us so many times (that the property will be cleaned up when it's not) that there's no point of waiting beyond that," he said.

Cline reported on another nuisance issue that had lingered with the Plan Commission for more than a year trying to get Lewis Handlon to clean up his property at 10218 West Polk Road, Lexington, in Graham Township. Handlon attended a couple of meetings late last year, suggesting he would clean the property but shortly after the beginning of this year, the Plan Commission determined that no progress was being made and decided to take Handlon to court.

Cline said a hearing was held on the Handlon property last week, but the property has been sold. "The bank has taken it back and it has changed hands," he said, noting that with the court hearing 60 days was given for the property to be cleaned up.

He added that with the change in property ownership "the bank is on board in getting it cleaned up any way."

Cline said there have been several successes, noting he makes efforts to notify property owners with violations before bringing them before the plan commission and many respond properly.

"We do get responses to letters" in which the properties do get cleaned up, and they aren't reported to the board. "But the ones that don't, there's no sense sending letters for years and years." He said once three letters are sent with no response from the property owner, he brings the violation to the plan commission.

CPR Workshop

Above: Cardio Pulmonary Resuscitation instructor Jamie Royce leads training Thursday at Madison City Hall held in honor of Lily Trader for her assistance in performing CPR on 10-month old Annie McDowell, who died May 30. The CPR training was an effort to help local youths be better prepared and available in such emergency situations.

The city also held a CPR training workshop at Madison City Hall to teach area youths how to perform life-saving measures in such emergencies.

Auxier said it could be helpful for the plan commission to be aware of those instances when violations are resolved. “There are a lot positives when you’re successful, and we don’t hear about it,” he said.

In the County Board of Zoning Appeals meeting, the board agreed to permit a variance to an existing barn at 11211 West Henry Road, Deputy, in Republican Township, from developmental standards from west side property line to build a 23-foot x 16-foot addition.

John Bohman, owner of the property, said the barn has been there “for as long as we have lived there the last 30 years” and was once part of a larger farm, and then the farm around me got sold off” ... “in doing so, my property line is rather close to the existing barn” that he uses as a garage and workshop.

Bohman said he wants to expand the existing structure in order to have space for another vehicle.

He said the restrictions were to prohibit sustained drone flight in the event area but in spite of the temporary restrictions, the same amount of drones were observed in use at the race this year as last year.

“We went back to the FAA who said why don’t you contact the Air Marshals; they can support that from enforcement,” Morgan said.

The Air Marshals,

using technology that can detect drones, made contact with 24 violators during the event. Morgan noted the violators were “amazed that they could be found so quickly.”

In other business:

- Commissioner Bobby Little provided an update on progress on the Jefferson County Sheriff’s Office and Criminal Justice Center, noting the roof is now 90% complete. “Everything is going ahead of schedule. They are working on getting the building closed up as much as possible so the weather won’t be so much an issue to them” moving forward on the jail. The jail is scheduled to be completed next year.

- Little also gave an update on work at the county animal shelter, noting drainage issues near the shelter building have been corrected and a new air conditioner has been installed. Additionally, he said new fencing has been ordered for the animal shelter, which is being funded with assistance from the Community Foundation of Madison and Jefferson County.
- Little announced that plans are underway by the Jefferson County Veterans Council to develop a new display in front of the Jefferson County Courthouse to honor those who served in Vietnam. The display will also honor Dale Crafton, who was awarded 13 medals and citations during his service in Vietnam. Little said the county is being asked to provide support for benches and a brick walkway leading to the display. He said the brick walkway will have footprints of the soldiers to “add to the experience of walking in the soldiers’ footsteps.”

- Announced a public forum on the Second Amendment for 6 p.m. on Thursday, July 28, at the Community Building at the Jefferson County

4-H Fairgrounds. County resident Richard Carter has appeared at several Commissioners meetings over the last year requesting that Jefferson County be adopted as a Second Amendment sanctuary to prohibit or impede the enforcement of certain gun control measures he says will violate the Second Amendment.

- Lindsey Wyne, administrator of the Jefferson County Health Department, reported on efforts to repair roofs at the health department and a garage. After a recent storm caused damage, Wyne reported that insurance will only cover the part of the garage roof that was damaged, and considering the county’s deductible it doesn’t seem worth the effort to go through the insurance company. Wyne also said the current roof on the health department was installed in 2008, and will soon be due for replacement.

ment. So far, quotes have been received from one contractor but more will be sought as county officials consider how to move forward.

- Little gave special recognition to Paul Geyman, the county’s animal control officer, for recently reuniting 14 dog owners with their dogs and keeping those pets from going to the animal shelter. Little said Geyman goes “above and beyond the call of duty.”
- “It’s more than just me,” Geyman said. “I love to help but there a lot of good people out there who like to help too.”
- Lori Hedges, president of the Cable Advisory Board, informed the Commissioners that the CAB wants to hire a coordinator and increased contributions will be sought from the City of Madison, Town of Hanover and Jefferson County to fund that position.
- “It’s so hard to find anybody to work and pay them enough,” said Hedges, who noted she will bring a more formal presentation to the Commissioners at their next meeting.
- Heard presentations from Susan Stahl, executive director of Girls Inc., and Erin Thomas, executive director of LifeTime Resources, on their budget request for 2023. Girls Inc. is seeking $5,000 while LifeTime Resources is seeking

Tony Steinhardt III, the city’s director of economic development who is the city’s liaison to the public arts commission, said funds have been budgeted for professional services that could be used to hire a consultant. He said if the guidelines can be developed by the end of the year, perhaps an ordinance could go before City Council early next year and be in effect by the spring.

In other business:

- Steinhardt said a public art sculpture has been planned for the new Madison gateway project from the Milton-Madison bridge approach, and the public arts commission will select that artist. After discussions with Nyberg and Madison Mayor Bob Courtney, Steinhardt said they feel the artist should be a native or current resident of Indiana, and they will consult the Indiana Arts Commission for a list of qualified and available artists.
- Steinhardt said $100,000 is currently earmarked for the gateway sculpture but “we know that’s not enough” and estimated the cost will likely be closer to $250,000. “We’ll be looking at some private dollars as well as grants” to provide the necessary funding, Steinhardt said, adding there’s also a chance that more dollars may be available if costs for other projects on gateway end up being less than estimated.
- Much of the funding for the gateway work will come from READI (Regional Economic Acceleration and Development Initiative) grant funds the city anticipates receiving from the Our Southern Indiana Regional Development Authority for its Destination Madison project.
- Nyberg said once the sculpture is in place “the great thing is that becomes an attraction. So, you’re paying it forward and investing forever and it will be something people are very proud of.”
- Steinhardt provided an update on the groundbreaking for the Sunrise Crossings development scheduled for 10:30 a.m. on Tuesday. There will be an announcement of a nationally known artist who will create the public art to be located at that property.
- The commission unanimously adopted a mission statement that “envisions a community where public art humanizes the city environment and enhances the overall sense of place for residents and visitors. Public Art will acknowledge the impact of the creative sector from within the city, region and nation while supporting the community’s growth. The Public Arts Commission sees Art as visual media that will support the city’s historical and contemporary fabrics that define Madison’s sense of place.”
- David Terrell, appointed to the commission last month, attended his first meeting, joining those previously appointed including Nyberg, Eric Phagan, Tracy Wyne and Greg Goodknight.

Hanover pursuing grant for master plan

BY BOB DEMAREE

A discussion was held on the need for a master plan for the town of Hanover at Tuesday's meeting of the Hanover Town Council.

Richard Ice, executive director of the Madison Area Chamber of Commerce, said the Chamber has agreed to provide assistance along with the Southeast Indiana Regional Planning Commission and Hanover College to facilitate with the project.

A $50,000 Office of Community and Rural Affairs (OCRA) grant is being sought to provide planning on how to help the town best grow and develop. He said the first step "is putting together a scope of work plan. We need to decide what areas we want the plan to include, it could be infrastructure, quality of life, health and safety, land use, housing, community services/relations, economic development or anything else the committee comes up with."

In other business:

- Scott Williams, Hanover's superintendent of Streets and Utilities, said funds are available for work to maintain many of the town's streets by crack-filling, sealing and re-stripping. There is $64,495 available in the roads and streets fund towards the cost of the work. Williams will seek quotes for the work but doesn't expect to need all the entire fund.

"I've just noticed some cracks, and want to stay on top of it," he said to keep the city's streets to the best condition possible.

- Building Inspector/Zoning Officer Rick Schnebelt said Hanover Plan Commission will meet at 6 p.m. on Monday, July 18, to begin consideration on a proposed 91-acre subdivision in Hanover in the vicinity of Meadow Lane and Butler Falls Golf Course.

Use Math And Science When Planning Your Retirement

Layin it on the line

By Stephen Dybwad Retirement Planning/Wealth Management

First and foremost, I want to let you know that I would never try to sell you on anything. I have learned in my 40 years of experience that if I try to talk you into something, anybody can come right along and talk you out of it so, that is not my objective. However, with math, science, and reason, I would like to reaffirm some very important facts and figures about your retirement planning:

1. We all know the market is cyclical, it goes up, and it goes down. We have had the longest upmarket, "Bull Market," in the history of the stock market; over the last nine years. Thus, Reason alone, tells us that we are due for a market correction, "Bear Market." Math and science prove that we are due for a soon coming market correction. Just to name a few of the catalysts of a possible Bear Market, but not limited to, are these indicators:
 - The most significant "Buyback" in the history of the market took place in the last quarter of 2018. A "buyback" is essentially corporations run out of ideas to increase stock market shares and dividends of their company. They are buying back their stock held in foreign countries and inflating their profits. As of October
2. Historically the S&P time-line for recuperating from market corrections is between 13 to 22 years. Studies reflect that 64% of the time, the S&P is either losing ground or making up losses. Let me ask the question, "Going into retirement, do you want the 64% chance of a market correction and taking 13 to 22 years to recuperate the retirement savings you've accumulated over your lifetime?
3. Mathematically, it's a proven fact that if a retiree experiences double-dipping (losing value in their account and drawing income from their account simultaneously) at the beginning of their retirement, they will outlive their retirement funds before they outlive their retirement life. This is known as the "Sequence of Returns." Also, add the devastating fact of fees, the account now has triple dipping!
4. Psychological studies prove that retirees with a guaranteed, known, and predictable source of income live a much happier, stress-free, and worry-free retirement life.
5. The Fixed Indexed Annuity (FIA) relieves merely the risks of outliving one's money and the burden of trying to manage and chase market returns and trying to avoid market losses of managing a retiree's portfolio. It gives a guaranteed, predictable income for life as well as a projected income, based upon only upside market growth. It automatically tracks this upside market growth.

I trust that the above information on math, science, facts, and figures will assist in journeying into a peaceful, stress-free, worry-free retirement.

of 2018, there were over $800 Billion in stock buybacks, a stock market record. Corporations used funds from $2.6 trillion dollars sitting overseas.

- The tariffs imposed on foreign countries in June 2018.
- The housing market, as interest rates increase, so will adjustable rate mortgages increase.
- A Zerohedge chart reflects that home-builder stocks are already dropping as lumber prices forecast a drop in the housing market.
- Interest rates tend to go up when the federal reserve unwinds its balance sheet and adds to the supply of Treasuries and mortgage-backed securities on the market. When interest rates go higher, stock valuations need to go down with a lower P/E ratio. (Profit /Expense ratio)
- Federal Reserve policy. A JP Morgan study reflects that the Federal Reserve is decreasing its balance sheet of treasuries and mortgage-backed securities by $50 billion a month, which is known as Quantitative Tightening, which is projected to continue to at least the end of 2020.
- Valuations. The United States Stock Market is the most expensive in the world at this moment. The Buffett indicator is flashing red with a total market capitalization vs. GDP (Gross Domestic Product) of 150%. Studies reflect that any ratio above 115% is an indicator that the market is significantly overvalued.

King resigns as head girls basketball coach at Shawe

BY JORDAN BEAR

Terry King spent the last four years turning the Shawe Memorial High School girls basketball program around, but now it will be up to somebody else to take the Hilltoppers to the next level.

King officially announced his retirement from coaching on Thursday night after four years at Shawe. The veteran coach, who has also coached at Southwestern and Hanover College, is excited about the what the future holds for the young Hilltoppers but said that now was the time to step away.

“This is such a great group of kids, and they’re going to be really good for the next few years,” King said. “However, it’s just simply time. After talking with my family and my friends, it’s simply time to hang it up. I’ve loved this game all my life, and I know I will miss it, but it’s time.”

After winning just two games during the COVID-plagued 2020-21 season, Shawe rode the emergence of its three freshmen stars to nine wins, the program’s most since the 2016-17 season.

Those freshmen, Ava Turner, Allison Knoebel and Harlee Hill, are headed into their sophomore year and with a very good freshman class coming in, there is a lot of excitement around the Lady Hilltopper program.

King knows how good they’re going to be over the next few years, but he said that’s reason why it’s time for him to step aside.

“When we went to camp (last month), that really just wore on me and I was tired and exhausted,” King said. “These girls are going to be very good and they deserve a coach who is fully committed over the next four years and I think it’s for the best for everyone.”

Shawe Athletic Director Jamiison Bower said he was grateful for King’s service.

“We appreciate the four years coach King has spent with our girls program and his dedication to the school,” Bower said. “He was worked hard to share his vision, passion, and knowledge of the game with our student-athletes and we wish him the best of luck in retirement.”

Shawe is currently accepting resumes for the coaching position and King said the new coach will be in for a treat.

“This team, I firmly believe, will win a sectional by the time they graduate. Whomever they bring in is getting not only great talent, but just a great group of kids,” King said. “I know I’m going to miss it. I’m going to miss them, and I will still come to games this year. I probably won’t early on because it will be too hard, but as hard as it is, I know this is the right decision for me and the program. They’re in great shape and will be an exciting team to watch going forward.”

India, Drury key rally, Reds beat Pirates 5-1 to split DH

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CINCINNATI — Jonathan India hit a go-ahead single, Brandon Drury added a two-run triple and the Cincinnati Reds beat the Pittsburgh Pirates 5-1 on Thursday night to split a doubleheader.

Pittsburgh won the opener 4-2 behind rookie starter Roansy Contreras, who allowed one run in six innings.

In the nightcap, India snapped a 1-1 tie with his two-out single in the seventh inning off Bryse Wilson, which followed an error by second baseman Josh VanMeter that allowed Nick Senzel to reach.

Drury followed against reliever Chris Stratton and hit a line drive that eluded right fielder Ben Gamel’s diving effort and rolled to the wall for a triple.

Tommy Pham capped the rally with an RBI single to left field.

Wilson (1-5) allowed four runs — just one earned — on seven hits in a season-high 6²/₃ innings.

He was coming off his first win of the season last Saturday against Milwaukee.

Wilson was recalled from Triple-A Indianapolis to be Pittsburgh’s 27th man for the doubleheader.

Jeff Hoffman lasted 1²/₃ innings in a bullpen game for the Reds. Ross Detwiler pitched one inning and Robert Dugger — added to the roster between games — turned in 3¹/₃ before Reiver Sanmartin (1-4) pitched 2²/₃ innings for the win.

In the opener, Michael Chavis hit a tiebreaking two-run double and Diego Castillo homered to back Contreras (3-2).

Jason Delay drove in Gamel from first base with a seventh-inning double for his first career hit and RBI as Pittsburgh sent the Reds to their seventh loss in nine games. Delay’s hit boosted Pittsburgh’s lead to 4-1.

Mike Minor (1-6) struck out a season-high eight over 6¹/₃ innings on the way to his fourth straight loss.

He allowed four runs on five hits with two walks and a hit batter.

Minor held Pittsburgh hitless through the first four innings.

WHOLESALE CHANGES FOR REDS

Between games, the Reds transferred RHP Vladimir Gutierrez (right forearm strain) to the 60-day IL, placed catcher Aramis Garcia (left middle finger) on the 10-day IL, promoted RHP Robert Dugger from Triple-A Louisville and recalled catcher Mark Kolosvary from Louisville.

WEDNESDAY METS 8, REDS 3 10 INNINGS

Brandon Nimmo’s three-run homer capped a five-run 10th inning and the New York Mets came back late to beat the Cincinnati Reds 8-3 on Wednesday night.

Starling Marte grounded an RBI double over third base off Hunter Strickland with one out in the ninth, scoring Nimmo from first to tie the game at 3 apiece.

Dominic Smith’s double off Dauri Moreta (0-2) drove home pinch-runner Ender Incarte from second base with the go-ahead run in the 10th inning.

James McCann delivered an RBI single before Nimmo’s shot sent the NL East leaders to their 20th series win this season — they took two of three from the last-place Reds.

Pete Alonso went 4 for 5 with a double. Nimmo had three hits and scored three times from the leadoff spot as New York remained 2¹/₂ games ahead of second-place Atlanta.

Nick Senzel hit a two-run homer for the Reds, who have the worst record in the National League.

Facing a hard-throwing rookie for the third straight day, the Mets couldn’t get much going against Graham Ashcraft, who allowed 10 hits but only two runs in six innings.

Cincinnati threw Hunter Greene, Nick Lodolo and Ashcraft in succession against the Mets, who were shut out 1-0 on Tuesday night.

“They made us scratch and claw this entire series,” Nimmo said. “Hats off to those starters we faced the past few days. It was really important to pull it out at the end today.”

WNBA’s Griner pleads guilty at her drug trial in Russia

BY JIM HEINTZ
ASSOCIATED PRESS

MOSCOW — American basketball star Brittney Griner pleaded guilty Thursday to drug possession charges on the second day of her trial in a Russian court in a case that could see her sentenced to up to 10 years in prison.

The abrupt guilty plea by the Phoenix Mercury center and two-time Olympic gold medalist came amid a growing chorus of calls for Washington to do more to secure her freedom nearly five months after her arrest in February amid rising tensions between the U.S. and Russia over Ukraine.

A senior Russian diplomat said earlier that no action could be taken by Moscow on Griner’s case until the trial was over, and her guilty plea could be an effort by her and her advisers to expedite the court proceedings.

Griner, 31, was detained at Moscow’s Sheremetyevo Airport while returning to play basketball in Russia, and police said they found vape canisters containing cannabis oil in her luggage.

Speaking through an interpreter, Griner told the court she had no intention of committing a crime and had acted unintentionally because she had packed for Moscow in a hurry. The trial was then adjourned until July 14.

Griner emphasized “that she had committed this act through negligence, unintentionally,” her lawyer, Maria Blagovolina, said outside the court in the Moscow suburb of Khimki after the guilty plea.

“We of course hope for the leniency of the court,” she said. “Considering all the circumstances of the case, taking into account the personality of our client, we believe that the admission of guilt should certainly be taken into account.”

Blagovolina added that other defense witnesses would be questioned at a later session.

Griner was escorted to the courtroom in handcuffs and clad in a bright red T-shirt with the name “Crenshaw” and sweat pants. She also held a photo of her wife, Cherelle.

White House press secretary Karine Jean-Pierre said Griner’s guilty plea “will have no impact on any of the negotiations” involving her case.

U.S. women beat Jamaica 5-0 at the W Championship

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MONTERREY, Mexico — The U.S. women’s national team qualified for the 2023 World Cup on Thursday night at the CONCACAF W Championship.

The United States defeated Jamaica 5-0 at Estadio BBVA but had to wait until Haiti downed Mexico 3-0 in the late game to secure a spot in next summer’s World Cup in Australia and New Zealand.

With two victories at the W Championship, the United States was atop its group and became the first team to win one of the region’s four World Cup berths up for grabs. The U.S. women have qualified for every World Cup, winning the last two tournaments and four overall.

Sophia Smith had two goals for the United States in the opening eight minutes against the Reggae Girlz.

Rose Lavelle scored in the 59th minute and Kristie Mewis added a goal in the 83rd. Some three minutes later Trinity Rodman, daughter for former NBA player Dennis Rodman, scored her second international goal.

“Obviously, being a young player on this team, it can be a little bit intimidating, but I think I’ve found my confidence and I’ve just felt I can be myself on the field,” said Smith, who has eight international goals. “That’s just what I’ve been doing and my team has been super supportive of that.”

Megan Rapinoe was not available for the match because she was at the White House on Thursday to receive the Medal of Freedom, the nation’s highest civilian honor.

“We didn’t play well,” Jamaica coach Lorne Donaldson said. “You’re not going to play the world’s champ and play that bad and expect anything to come out of the game. We weren’t good.”

Roselord Borgella and Nerilia Mondesir converted penalty kicks and Sherly Jedy added a goal for Haiti in the victory over Mexico, stunning the tournament hosts.

The Americans will face Mexico and the Reggae Girlz will play Haiti in their final group matches on Monday. Haiti could clinch its first World Cup berth with a tie or win over Jamaica.

Eight teams were playing in the W Championship, divided into two groups. The top two teams in each group qualify for the World Cup. The two third-place teams will advance to an intercontinental playoff in New Zealand in February.

The winner of the W Championship will also qualify for the 2024 Olympics.

Canada, Costa Rica, Panama and Trinidad and Tobago are in the other group.

NASCAR penalizes Gragson for intentional Road America crash

BY JENNA FRYER
AP AUTO RACING WRITER

NASCAR on Wednesday penalized Noah Gragson for a deliberate and dangerous crash he caused in the Xfinity Series race at Road America.

Gragson, who turns 24 later this month, was docked 30 points and fined $35,000 by NASCAR for intentionally crashing into Sage Karam on Saturday at the road course in Wisconsin. NASCAR cited a rule against “intentionally wrecking another vehicle” and “actions by a NASCAR Member that NASCAR finds to be detrimental to stock car racing or NASCAR.”

Gragson’s swerve into Karam triggered a frightening multicar crash that was so egregious, Gragson was criticized publicly by Dale Earnhardt Jr. ahead of the penalty announcement.

The NASCAR Hall of Famer and co-owner of the JR Motorsports team Gragson has represented since 2019 was surprised NASCAR didn’t immediately penalize his driver.

“I was shocked, to be honest with you, when I saw Noah make that decision,” Earnhardt said Wednesday morning on SiriusXM NASCAR Radio. “I was just completely shocked and in a bit of a disbelief not only that he made that choice but that he, you know, that it created such an accident and got so many other guys involved. That was tough to watch, really tough.”

“I think that NASCAR doesn’t want to over-officiate the races, but I think in some situations there’s some things that do cross over a line. And I felt like that was definitely one of those situations where had I been in the booth directing the race I think I would’ve had to bring Noah to pit road and hold him there for a while.”

NASCAR said it did not immediately issue the penalty after the 13-car crash because the racing Saturday on the road course had been so aggressive that it wanted to speak with Gragson and examine his Chevrolet to ensure he had not suffered a mechanical failure.

“Obviously nothing was wrong with the car and it was clear it was intentional,” NASCAR said in a statement. “Parking the (number) 9 during the event was an option, but we felt that more information was needed before making a decision on any disciplinary measures.”

The points deduction did not drop Gragson in the standings; he has two victories this season.

Kelley Earnhardt Miller, who was initially defiant against calls for Gragson to be punished, said on Twitter the team she co-owns with her brother “understands” the NASCAR penalty.

“Noah is a passionate race car driver, and his actions occurred in the heat of the moment,” she wrote. “Learning how and when to keep emotions in check is all part of the learning experience.”

Gragson lost his temper after he and Karam banged several times shortly after the start of the third stage. Gragson turned right deliberately to hook Karam on the straightaway between Turns 3 and 5, which triggered other crashes.

Karam was immediately critical of the danger Gragson’s action caused other drivers, and Gragson was unapologetic for crashing Karam.

“It’s one thing if you’re faster than someone,” Gragson said, “but to throw it off in there and run you off the racetrack in the corner, door you, run you off the track. Finally, after the third time, I’m over it. It’s not the ideal situation for him and his team, but two or three times, I’m done with it.”

Earnhardt on Wednesday said wrecking Karam never should have been an option.

“He needs to take that out of his choices. He cannot be intentionally turning into guys on straightaways. I just hope that he realizes that that really is something that he needs to be careful about going forward,” Earnhardt said. “Noah wants to race in the Cup level, he wants to get to the Cup level and we want to help him get there whether he’s driving a Cup car for us one day or someone else.

“When he makes those type of decisions, and this is what I told him, I said: ‘You’re hurting that opportunity. You’re tarnishing, staining your reputation. And that’s the last thing you want to do when you’re trying to get job offers.’ I told him that I could stand behind him through just about anything, but I could not defend that.”

Karam crashed in 2015 while leading an IndyCar race at Pocono Raceway and a piece of broken debris from his car bounced up and struck Justin Wilson’s helmet, delivering a fatal blow.

Karam is now trying a mix of both NASCAR and IndyCar and has been unimpressed with Gragson in his time in NASCAR’s second-tier series.

“I knew I was faster than Noah, and he didn’t like that a little team was doing that to him,” Karam said. “He can go out there and drive however he wants and it’s not a worry for him. It affects us a lot more than it affects him.”

Karam is entered in Saturday’s race at Atlanta Motor Speedway, where he will face Gragson again but said he won’t retaliate.

“I’m not going to intentionally drive into somebody or take somebody out,” Karam said. “That’s just not the type of driver I am. Twenty-something years of racing, that’s never happened to me until (Road America). I would say that’s racing, but to me that wasn’t racing.”

He also wasn’t sure if Gragson would change. The Las Vegas native has been involved in myriad on-track aggressions throughout his short career.

“In the short time I’ve been Xfinity racing, I have not heard a lot of great things about Noah and he has not shown a lot of great racing with me on track,” Karam said. “I’m not sure Noah can change. This is something that Noah needs to look in the mirror, he needs to look at himself and want to make a change.”

Injured Nadal out of Wimbledon; Kyrgios advances

BY HOWARD FENDRICH
AP TENNIS WRITER

WIMBLEDON, England — Rafael Nadal withdrew from Wimbledon because of a torn abdominal muscle on Thursday, a day before he was supposed to play Nick Kyrgios in the semifinals.

It is the first time since 1931 that a man pulled out of the oldest Grand Slam tournament before a semi-final or final.

“I made my decision because I believe that I can’t win two matches under these circumstances,” Nadal said at a news conference at the All England Club. “I can’t serve. It’s not only that I can’t serve at the right speed, it’s that I can’t do the normal movement to serve.”

The 22-time major champion sighed occasionally while answering questions in English, then Spanish, for more than 20 minutes total. He twice described himself as “very sad.”

Rafael Nadal

Nadal said trying to continue to compete could make the injury worse.

The only other time in his career that Nadal gave a walkover to an opponent by pulling out of a Grand Slam tournament prior to a match came at the 2016 French Open, when he withdrew before the third round because of an injured left wrist.

The 40th-ranked Kyrgios, a 27-year-old from Australia, advanced to his first title match at a major tournament and becomes the first unseeded men’s finalist at Wimbledon since Mark Philippoussis, who lost to Roger Federer in 2003.

“I hope your recovery goes well and we all hope to see you healthy soon,” Kyrgios wrote in an Instagram post addressed to Nadal.

Kyrgios will meet either three-time defending champion and No. 1 seed Novak Djokovic or No. 9 Cam Norrie of Britain for the championship on Sunday; their semifinal will be played Friday.

The second-seeded Nadal, a 36-year-old from Spain, is 19-0 in Grand Slam action in 2022, including trophies at the Australian Open in January and the French Open in June. That put him halfway to a calendar-year Grand Slam for the first time in his career.

Nadal has been bothered by a stomach muscle for about a week, and the pain became nearly unbearable in the first set of his 4-hour, 21-minute victory via fifth-set tiebreaker against Taylor Fritz in the quarterfinals on Wednesday.

After that match, Nadal said he had considered stopping before it was over — and could not be certain whether he would feel well enough to play again Friday.

He wore two strips of athletic tape on his lower stomach and took a medical timeout to take pain-killing pills; his father and sister motioned for him to quit.

On Thursday’s off day, Nadal went to the All England Club for a light practice session. He was signed up on the official schedule to train on one of the competition courts but did not show up there, instead opting for practice courts to which fans don’t have access.

Mostly content to hit forehands and backhands, Nadal did attempt a few serves — the part of his game that revealed the most obvious inability to play with full force and, he said, caused the most discomfort against Fritz. Those practice serves Thursday were generally tapped in, by Nadal’s standards, not with any of the body-torquing effort he usually uses.

“I was thinking during the whole day about the decision to make,” Nadal said.

It’s not far from what went on with Nadal at Roland Garros, where he took repeated injections to numb the chronic pain in his left foot and insisted he had no idea when he might reach the point of not being able to take the court.

He tried a new treatment after leaving Paris, and that worked well enough, Nadal said, to allow him to walk without limping.

His level of play through five matches on Wimbledon’s grass was such that he thought he had a chance to win a third title at the tournament, after those in 2008 and 2010.

The injury changed things, of course.

“I don’t want to go out there, not be competitive enough to play at the level that I need to play to achieve my goal,” he said.

Nadal said he thought he might be sidelined for about a month or so. The year’s last Grand Slam tournament, the U.S. Open, starts Aug. 29.

Banchero, Magic top Smith, Rockets in NBA Summer League

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Paolo Banchero, the No. 1 pick in the NBA draft, scored 13 of his 17 points in the first half, Caleb Houston had 20 and the Orlando Magic breezed to a 91-77 victory over the Houston Rockets on Thursday night to open play in the Las Vegas Summer League.

Banchero hit his first three shots — two of them 3-pointers — and added six assists.

Devin Cannady scored 15 points, while R.J. Hampton contributed 11 points and 11 rebounds.

Josh Christopher led the Rockets with 22 points. No. 3 pick Jabari Smith Jr. totaled 10 points, seven rebounds and three assists.

Tari Eason, the No. 17 pick, had 14 points and 13 rebounds.

PISTONS 81, TRAIL BLAZERS 78

Jaden Ivey scored 20 points and Detroit turned back Portland to cap off the first night of play in Las Vegas.

The No. 5 pick added six rebounds and six assists for the Pistons. Saben Lee and Isaiah Stewart scored 13 points apiece.

No. 13 pick Jalen Duren scored nine points on 4-of-6 shooting.

Keon Johnson topped the Blazers with 22 points. Shaedon Sharpe, the No. 7 pick, scored two points in 5½ minutes before leaving with a shoulder injury.

76ERS 80, THUNDER 79

Isaiah Joe made a go-ahead 3-pointer with 25 seconds left, his fourth of the game, and Philadelphia beat Oklahoma City on the final day of the Salt Lake City Summer League.

Tre Mann missed a 3-pointer in the closing seconds and Paul Reed secured the rebound to hand the Thunder, who rested No. 2 pick Chet Holmgren in their third game in three nights, their first loss in three games.

Joe finished with 19 points and Reed had 14 points and seven rebounds for Philadelphia.

Mann scored 13 points. Josh Giddey, coming off a triple-double, had 10 points, five rebounds and seven assists for the losing Thunder.

Oklahoma City scored the first six points of the game but Philadelphia answered with a 19-2 run of its own to take over.

GRIZZLIES 95, JAZZ 84

Ziaire Williams scored 10 of his 19 points in the third quarter and Memphis closed out the SLC Summer League with a victory over Utah.

Memphis trailed 50-38 at halftime. Williams scored six straight points to cut the Grizzlies’ deficit to single digits midway through the third quarter and David Roddy — one of Memphis’ two first-rounders in the 2022 draft — had a dunk and a three-point play late to help knot the score at 68 heading into the final quarter.

Roddy finished with 16 points. Santi Aldama scored 14, while Xavier Tillman added 10 points and 14 rebounds.

Jared Butler had 22 points, seven rebounds and seven assists for Utah.

A partner's death leads to a tough task

Dear Amy: This past April, my girlfriend of 10 years passed away. She didn't have a will or any life insurance. Her daughter paid for the cremation. He came to the house to pick up some of his sister's things. Her daughter also retrieved some items.

I have no problem with any family members receiving anything they want. My problem is almost the opposite of that: Nobody in the family wants most of her possessions because they don't have the room in their own homes. They told me I could do what I want with her leftover possessions.

I know that people say, "Just have a garage sale," but I don't know how to do that!

AMY DICKINSON
ASK AMY

I work five days a week. How do I sell this stuff at a fair price? I'm also worried about people coming to my house and asking about stuff or asking about the price of things.

Can you help me get started?—Overwhelmed

Dear Overwhelmed: Hosting a yard sale can be rewarding in many ways — but the work is made much easier if you have a friend helping you.

There are also individuals and companies who will organize, price, and handle the selling for a portion of the profit. Before you host your sale, go to some other sales on a Saturday to see how things are organized and priced. If you hear about a "multi-family" sale on a specific weekend, you might plan your sale to happen at the same time. (Shoppers like to go from one sale to the next.)

Hold your sale either on the lawn (put things on tables) or in your open garage, with items NOT for sale covered up or behind tape. Keep the house locked. People who attend garage sales will not ask to enter your house.

Advertise your sale well by putting up colorful signs and posting a local notice on your neighborhood listserv and in the local newspaper.

Put price tag stickers on each item —that way you won't have to answer too many questions.

Have a plan for donating items that don't sell.

Fertile boyfriend tries to elude DNA

Dear Amy: I have been with my live-in boyfriend, "Gene," for over three years. He has two children, and I have three.

The issue I'm wrestling with is he recently found out he has a 5-year-old child.

When we met, he told me he had already established that the child wasn't his, via his mom taking a DNA test, which showed that this baby had no DNA connection to his family. Well, surprise ... the child IS his. Now I feel betrayed and duped. I wouldn't have been with him had I known about this third child (by three different women).

I am in love with him, and the best way I can describe this emotion is to say that to me, it's the equivalent to being cheated on. He doesn't understand why I have such strong feelings about this.

He said I am supposed to support him. I'm not sure how I can do that when I feel second-rate to three women who have his children, and yet I don't have a child with him. He has told me he has no desire for marriage.

So I am supposed to be his girlfriend for the rest of my life, while these women have a solidified place in his life and a bigger connection to him than I am going to have? I don't want to end things with him, but how can I help these feelings I have and find a way to accept this and move on? — So Many Feelings

Dear So Many Feelings: I urge you to re-examine your choices — and for now to only do so from the vantage point of what would benefit you and your children.

People are somewhat predictable. Gene has established a pattern of overall selfishness. Well-matched partners grasp hands and ride life's roller coaster together. If you don't feel that you two are able to do that, then you should carefully reconsider staying with him, long term.

You say you want to stay with him. If you do stay, you should accept that you might be riding this roller coaster alone.

ASTROLOGY

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — Focus on finding a more fulfilling way to handle family finances. Avoid being susceptible when salespeople knock on the door. Organizing your budget could shine some light on areas where you could trim expenses.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — If you don't like taking no for an answer, you may be disappointed if you don't get the answer you want. Wishful thinking may be costly or put you at risk if someone only tells you what you want to hear.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — You may be allowing daydreams, social media or other distractions to interfere with your daily routines. You might not be at your best in social gatherings tonight. Stay home with a loved one where you can relax and be most at ease.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — Integrity might well be the cornerstone of your life. You may be challenged to make the best use of your money so it benefits many rather than a few. Don't waste resources by betting what you don't want to lose.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — People appreciate your genuine kindness, but don't try too hard. Brighten someone's life with a smile but avoid seeming like you're love-bombing. Giving one sincere compliment is better than abundant false flattery.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — Don't fall for it. Be seriously skeptical and ignore any nagging voice that urges you to purchase something on a whim or take a chance on the unknown. Someone could show up at the wrong place or the wrong time.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) — You might be oblivious to obvious flaws and feel a desire to be an ostrich, live in a fantasy world and ignore the harsh realities of life. Enjoy binge-watching something fun but put signing contracts and agreements on hold.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) — Avoid the temptation to indulge a whim or to pursue a passing fancy. There may be a misunderstanding with a partner or family member, and it may be up to you to square it up. Make no key decisions this weekend.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) — Some problems cannot be solved by throwing money at them. Focus on making your home a center of inspiring conversation. You and a loved one can dream together without spending a single penny.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — Exercise restraint where purchases and additional expenditures are concerned. Your bank account can grow fatter if you concentrate on being thrifty. Scrutinize the fine print of agreements and contracts.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) — Keep your money in your pocket and hang at home. Today you could be too trusting and impulsively buy items or meet up with people that aren't quite as advertised. Stick to an existing plan to create long-term security.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) — Your sense of adventure and imagination can make this a fun-filled weekend. It's fine to wander off without a fixed destination in mind, but at least let people know what you're doing and where you end up.

ASTROLOGY

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — Turn down the haste and chill out. Loved ones may prefer to be thorough and take their time, so do not rush ahead. It will be easier to get your tasks completed on time if you make a list and organize your day.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — The more things change, the more you may want them to stay the same. Some budget decisions may remain unresolved because you prefer to continue along a familiar path, however, some adjustments might be needed.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — Stick to the script and all should come together. Make sure you've done your best before moving on to a new project. A friendly flirtation could come your way and give you something to dream about later.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — Do the voodoo that only you can do. Your strength of character shines through when you are inspired by love. Your generosity of spirit is obvious when you are engaged in business activities and creating policies.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) —

Work toward making dreams a reality. View your career, relationships or financial situation with the eyes of gratitude for your blessings. You might work best in a quiet place where your creativity can have free rein.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — Apply common sense when confronted with confusion. Focus on creative thoughts and inspirational messaging. Your random ideas may seem like crazy dreams now but could prove profitable or useful in the future.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) — You may be judged by results, but the journey can be the real gift. Don't assume there is a mistake just because something is not perfect. You may be pleasantly surprised if you ask for feedback from others.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) — A loved one might encourage you to embrace higher standards. You may be more romantic than usual but constrained by obligations. There could be little time to follow through on your fancies and inner fantasies.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec.

21) — You may be captivated by someone or something for all the wrong reasons but still get all the right results. Supportive partners should be enthused about your creative ideas and impressed by your insightful plans.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — Demand to see the details. Precision insights and the right take on things can bring all your ambitions into sharp focus. The desire to impress a loved one or potential partner might inspire you to work harder.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) — Rely on yourself, not on others. You can shoulder responsibilities without fanfare and make organizing your personal or career world an art. Stay in your lane unless someone specifically asks for your help.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) — Receive a power boost by embracing the profound. Use your vision as fodder to fuel the achievement of your dreams. A partner or loved one might offer a framework to contain your insights and inspirations.

Pac-12 facing uncertain future after losses to Big Ten

BY JOHN MARSHALL ASSOCIATED PRESS The Pac-12 can make a case as the most successful conference in collegiate athletics, amassing more than 500 NCAA championships while leading the nation in titles 56 of the past 62 years. But when it comes to the biggest moneymakers, football and men's basketball, the "Conference of Champions" has come up short for years. The lack of success, particularly in football, combined with the conference's media rights missteps have put the Pac-12 on shaky financial footing, opening the door for two of its marquee schools to jump ship. Now, with the loss of UCLA and USC to the Big Ten in 2024, the conference and its remaining member schools face an even more uncertain economic future. "You have exploding costs on one end and your revenue sources are being decimated, which is a tremendous pressure," Smith College economics professor Andrew Zimbalist said. "On the other hand, what do you do? Well, something pretty radical I think is going to have to happen." The Pac-12's dilemma has been building for years. Once a powerhouse football conference, the Pac-12 has been a bit player in the national championship conversation of late. Since Oregon was blown out by Ohio State in the 2015 championship game, the Pac-12 has had one team play in the College Football Playoff: Washington in 2017. Oregon has fallen off since Chip Kelly left for the NFL in 2013 and Southern California, once the conference's marquee program, never fully got back on track after the NCAA sanctions of the Pete Carroll era. The Pac-12 has been just as quiet in men's basketball, getting two teams — Oregon in 2017 and UCLA in 2021 — through to the Final Four. The lack of success made the Pac-12's football games maybe-watch TV, which in turn has made it more difficult to lure top coaches and recruits away from rival conferences — particularly the football juggernaut SEC. "In the old days, USC and UCLA would be right up there at the top of the national football heap every year, and they've fallen way down," Zimbalist said. "And so you need some fill up, some boost to get them to a point where they can really be a strong, strong franchise again — and I just don't see that." The Pac-12 drop-off was compounded by its media rights deals. As TV packages began to bulge, former Pac-12 Commissioner Larry Scott pushed for the conference to build its own network instead of partnering with ESPN, Fox or another network. A self-sustained network would allow the Pac-12 to control programming, showcase its highly successful Olympic sports and reap all the financial rewards.

Wimbledon to get 1st-time champ when Rybakina plays Jabeur

BY CHRIS LEHOURITES
ASSOCIATED PRESS

WIMBLEDON, England — The names and faces of the star players at Wimbledon didn't matter to Elena Rybakina when she was a child.

The majesty of the tournament made pretty a big impression, though.

On Saturday, she'll get a chance to add her name to the pantheon of greats at the oldest and most prestigious tennis tournament of them all.

"As a kid, I don't remember exactly who was playing, but when Wimbledon was on TV, it was always traditional white. I remember this well," Rybakina said. "Strawberries. Champagne. It's something, like, very nice to see."

Rybakina is one match away from winning a Grand Slam tournament for the first time, in her first major final.

And so is her opponent, Ons Jabeur — the first Arab woman and first African woman ever to reach this stage at one of the four biggest tournaments in tennis.

Jabeur, who is from Tunisia, advanced to the final by beating Tatjana Maria 6-2, 3-6, 6-1 on Thursday.

Rybakina followed that match on the grass of Centre Court and defeated 2019 champion Simona Halep 6-3, 6-3.

"I didn't expect that I'm going to be here in the second week, especially in the final," said Rybakina, who was born in Russia but plays for Kazakhstan. "I believe that I have a game to go far in the Grand Slams. Of course, I believe that maybe one day I can win it."

This year's championship match at Wimbledon will be the first to feature two female first-time Grand Slam finalists since 1962, with Karen Susman beat Vera Suková in straight sets.

A win for either Rybakina or Jabeur on Saturday will also be a first Grand Slam title won by a player from their respective countries. Jabeur, known back home in Tunisia as the "Minister of Happiness" for her cheerful disposition, knows well how historic her Wimbledon run already is.

"I want to go bigger, inspire many more generation(s)," Jabeur said. "Tunisia is connected to the Arab world, is connected to the African continent. ... I want to see more players from my country, from the Middle East, from Africa."
